Celebrity appearances are particularly effective at golf tournaments, drawing wide attention from sponsors and guests.

Jackson Events provided more than 30 highly sought after celebrities to play in the 2003 Invest in Kids Charity Golf Classic. Celebrities included former NHLers Peter Mahovlich, Dale Hawerchuk, Rick Vaive, Johnny Bower, Wendel Clark, and Canadian Olympic Medalists Geraldine Heaney and Curt Harnett.

These are some of the many ways Jackson Events can set up your celebrity golf tournament:

A different Celebrity Guest can accompany each individual group, creating an impressive roster of celebrities to help market your tournament, and ensure a unique golf day for all of your guests.

One or more Celebrity Guests can stay on a hole as groups pass through, allowing each golfer a memorable one-on-one opportunity.

One or more Celebrity Guests can rotate between all of your guests' groups. A group photo taken with the celebrity is a great giveaway for your guests.

One or more Celebrity Guests can play the whole day with select groups who you may consider to be key clients or VIP's.

Hockey Hall of Famer Mike Gartner, shown here at the Wendel Clark Charity Classic, plays the third hole with each group as they pass through.

Celebrity appearances add an exciting element to any after-golf event, such as a cocktail reception, dinner and/or fundraising auction.

Jackson Events will help you choose the perfect celebrity to entertain your audience.

A Celebrity Guest can formally address your group in a comedic or motivational format, or can simply tell some stories, sign autographs and have their photos taken while mingling with your guests.

Celebrity Emcees are a great way to keep your guests entertained, and keep your event on schedule. Popular emcees include Jim Ralph, Dennis Hull, Ron MacLean, Joe Bowen, Brad Park, and Gord Stellick.

A Celebrity Auctioneer, such as Marcel Dionne can assist with fundraising in an entertaining and lively fashion.

Bobby Hull entertains a group and assists with fundraising by raffling off his NHL Alumni personalized hockey stick.
